

Jewish Museum David Melul

Located in a manor house from the end of the 15th century, located within the Béjar monumental complex, this Museum is responsible for disseminating the knowledge of the religion, history and culture of the Jews up to the time of their expulsion, the subsequent integration of the Judeo-converts in Christian Spain, and the survival of the Sephardic culture.

The most outstanding pieces are the model that Béjar recreates in the 15th century, the Fuero de Béjar, as well as various original elements used in the sacred ceremonies of the Jews.
