

Archeological site El Castro

The castro de Camarzana de Tera has been a Site of Cultural Interest since 1994 in the category of archaeological zone.

Located on a flat elevation, overlooking the village and the wide meadow of the Tera River, this site presents the typical castro settlements nestled in not mountainous areas related to river valleys.

Among the archaeological materials, various stones in quartzite of the Acheulean have been collected and handmade pottery from the Iron Age was also registered.
