

Monastery of Santa Clara

Built in the 14th and 15th centuries, the façade of this building features a Mudéjar door from the ancient palace and lobed arches bearing Muslim inscriptions in the interior.

An ancient palace built by Alphonse XI in the 14th century and later converted into a monastery on the orders of Peter I. It is considered one of the finest examples of Mudéjar art in Castilla y León.

Arab baths: the ancient palace baths, divided into four rooms. Closely related to similar 11th century Moorish sites in Andalusia and the Levante region.
