

Palace of the Aguado Pardo / Palace of the Junco

Former palace of the Aguado-Pardo family, known as the Palacio de los Junco. It is the only example of civil architecture from the baroque period in the city.

18th-century building in three sections. The first section is in dressed stone with a trabeated façade decorated with shapes of different lines. The main entrance is framed by two smooth pilasters and a broken frame with muffs in the corners, that extend upwards to frame the main window.
