

Church of the Vera Cruz

Templar church of 1208. It has a polygonal ground plan (12 sides), a projecting square tower and simple fronts.

Structured around a central, two-storey building with an ambulatory. The lower section looks like a crypt and has groin vaults. The upper section, accessed by means of a staircase, is topped with a caliphal vault. In its centre stands a prismatic block, an altar of sorts, decorated with arches; it may represent the Holy Sepulchre.
