

Bridge and roman road of Masegoso

The structure of the bridge is made of ashlar and the rest in masonry. It consists of a barrel vault and sandstone ashlar cutting forming keystones in the arch and making tympanums and supports. The keystones are very simple, wide and deep; the semicircular keystones are built on small piles 75 cm high.

The Roman bridge is situated on road number 257 from Astúrica to Caesaraugusta, and its round vaults well marked on the horizontal panel remind us of its Roman origins. It has undergone various alterations, the most important being in the 18th century.
