

Church of San Eutropio

Gothic church built in the 12th and 13th centuries. It contains an interesting main altarpiece by Francisco Giralde, dating from the late 16th century. Also worth a look are the oil board paintings by Sánchez Coello as well as the curtain which, during Lent, covers the church altarpiece, a masterpiece by Coello also.

There are also sculpted images by Giralte, Juan de Avalos and the Italian School of the 16th century, plus an organ by Echeverría, with a monumental carved pinewood Baroque box. There is also a canvas representing Nuestra Señora del Risco, the patron saint of Villatoro (Ávila), which was recently found in this church. It had been lost during the sale of the Church properties.
