

Hermitage of the Virgen del Val

The temple consists of a single nave with a rectangular apse and a southern portico. The portico has four wooden capitals on coarse stone bases.

Beneath the portico there is a door with a round arch on impostes and decorative elements. On the west wall there is a blocked-up door; on the north and south walls there are modillions from the Romantic era. The apse and the nave are linked by a round arch with a barrel vault and a timber frame.
