

Church of San Cristobal

Romanesque church built in the 12th century, retouched in several different styles. On March 25th, 2000, it received the Europa Nostra Award, which acknowledges the conservation and recovery of the architectonic and natural heritage.

Architecture enhances its interest thanks to the sculptural series carved in capitals as the columns of the main chapel, decorated with smooth leaves with balls, similar to the transept; nevertheless here should be highlighted one with interlaced lions and two with foliage of Byzantine type.
