

Church of San Cornelio and San Cipriano (Villaverde de Guareña)

The church is dated in the 16th century, all built in isodom stone, it is structured in a single nave wider than the main chapel. The headboard, in the Gothic style, shows a rectangular layout and is covered with a good octagonal coffered ceiling in exposed wood with pendentives on the corners. The nave seems to be a little bit later, it shows a more Renaissance style as the south cover testifies, in the orbit of Rodrigo Gil de Hontañón. The tribune of the feet dates from 1601 and the sacristy is a clearly Baroque addition.
