Journey: Circular
Way: - On foot
Length: 9.1 kms.
Ascent slope: 88 m.
Difficulty of the route: Medium
Web: To know more

This circular and flat path runs through the northern area of the municipality of Foncastín, right next to the Zapardiel stream and accompanied by cork oak forests, being one of the most important botanical treasures in the province of Valladolid. A small climb takes us to Mount Valgalindo, on a flat river terrace. The most interesting part of the trail is a mix of species such as holm oaks, gall oaks, pines and the aforementioned cork oaks.

Finally, the path ends among vineyards to enter the town of Foncastín, a town of white houses and arcaded squares.
