What are the wines from the PDO "HEREDAD DE URUEÑA" like?

The wines covered by the DOP «HEREDAD DE URUEÑA» can be aged rosés and reds. They are made from the Tempranillo, Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Syrah varieties.

The wines of the «DOP HEREDAD DE URUEÑA» are characterised by the originality in the expression of the varieties and by presenting a very positive evolution over time, enhancing the varietal aspects and complexity. They are powerful and sweet in the mouth, with a lot of structure and great colour stability. They stand out for their balance, their elegance and their mineral character that gives them a unique and singular personality.

The rosé wines from Urueña have raspberry pink hues and blue notes from the Syrah variety, which is the variety with the largest surface area. On the nose, fresh fruit predominates, with certain floral and caramel notes. The rosés from the Tempranillo variety are characterized more by the presence of red fruits.

As for the red wines, they have a remarkable chromatic intensity. They have a great aromatic complexity as a result of the varietal map and, above all, they are characterized by their roundness, by the absence of edges.

Where are they produced?

The geographical area protected by the PDO "HEREDAD DE URUEÑA" is located in the heart of the Tierra de Campos region of Valladolid. The estate has a total area of 78 ha and the winery is located within the estate itself.
