

Sierra Norte de Guadarrama Natural Park

Visit the Sierra Norte de Guadarrama Natural Park, a mountain area with a great diversity of environments and species. It is part of the Central System, which separates the two subplateaus of the Iberian Peninsula. It has very interesting geology and geomorphology, with remains of ancient glaciers. With a unique diversity of environmental conditions, its mountainous relief and varied vegetation offer an exceptional habitat for outstanding fauna, including emblematic species such as the Iberian imperial eagle, the black vulture and the black stork.

Explore the plant diversity, from mountain grasses and shrubs to large forests of Scots pine, birch, ash and yew. Discover the varied flora that changes with altitude and soil type.

Find unique fauna, see birds such as the imperial and royal eagle, vultures, eagle owls, black storks, as well as mammals such as the Iberian wolf, the wild cat and various species of mustelids.

A natural treasure that captivates with its beauty and biodiversity!
