

Fire Pass of San Pedro Manrique

The summer solstice arrives and San Pedro Manrique revives its most traditional and magical rite, the Paso del Fuego. With the arrival of the shortest night of the year, the stands of the Virgen de la Peña enclosure are filled with neighbors and visitors to enjoy this spectacle, whose symbolism is associated with the purifying effect of fire.

At midnight, a carpet of oak wood embers, meticulously prepared for hours, is crossed by the fire runners identified with a red sash - now women and men - of the town alone or with someone on their shoulders to carry out this task. ancestral rite.

Immediately before the ceremony begins, the "mondigas" enter, three young unmarried women who symbolize the goddesses of fire in Celtic mythology.
