

Tower of Hinojosa del Campo

From far away, you can glimpse the tower of Hinojosa del Campo. It joins from its views to others of similar characteristics, both chronological and typologically. These towers are seen from each other.

Structure with a belfry, pyramidal trunk, quadrangular floor, built with masonry of sandstone, with mortar linked with quartzite and limestone from small size, located to the West of the church of Nuestra Señora de la Asunción and two semicircular arched windows. It has hipped roof, with four bells that resonate and remind the Muslim watchtowers in its form. These qualities lead us to suppose that this structure is earlier than the rest of the building.
