

Rello

Situated in the south of the province of Soria, this medieval town defended the course of the River Duero. Traces of the fortifications can still be seen today, including the layout of the town wall. The main street runs from the church to the castle, crossing the main square. Two other streets run parallel to the main street, forming a ring next to the wall. The layout creates small blocks arranged haphazardly following the lines of the wall.

Good of Cultural Interest

13,587