

Museum of Burgos

Created in order to conserve Burgos' art and culture, it houses various collections providing an insight into the historical and cultural evolution of the city of Burgos and its province.

The exhibits in the Prehistoric and Archaeological Collection represent an outstanding testimony to the province's colourful past, ranging from the Palaeolithic remains discovered at Atapuerca to the Roman remains of the city of Clunia. In addition, the Fine Arts section houses a rich collection including Mozarabic works of art, as well as paintings from the 15th and 16th centuries (by artists such as Berruguete, Picardo, etc.), and works from the Baroque period and the 19th and 20th centuries.

In short, an absolute must for visitors wishing to discover the art and history of the city and province of Burgos.

Buildings

Miranda House and House of Iñigo Angulo: Built in the mid 15th century by Francisco de Miranda, canon of Burgos. Conserves an interesting plateresque patio. Beautiful entrance gates. Houses the Museum of Burgos. The lower floor is made of stone, and the rest in brick, all flanked by cylindrical attached towers topped by pinnacles. The façade is of Renaissance style, conceived as a triumphal semicircular arch, a couple of columns on each side, and motifs of fantastic creatures, medallions and details of plateresque tradition.
