

Fort of Concepcion

It is a replica of the nearby fortress of Almeida in Portugal and it was built on top of the remains of an old Osuna fortress by Manuel de Lara Churriguera. It is shaped as a star. The fortress had three sections, a main section and two secondary sections, interconnected by a tunnel network. The castle could host up to 1500 infantry men and 200 cavalry men.

The exhibit deals with the history of the Fuerte de la Concepción, the most representative monument of Aldea del Obispo, as well as with the daily life of the soldiers who lived in it. Specially noteworthy are the replicas of weapons, the texts and the explanatory illustrations, as well as the audiovisual devices and a large model of the monument.

Historical Hall Real Fuerte de la Concepcion

Through this didactic exhibition we have narrated the history of the Fuerte de la Concepción, a representative monument of the Aldea del Obispo, as well as the day-to-day life of the soldiers inhabiting such.

The numerous reproductions of weapons, texts and explanatory illustrations, audiovisual elements and a large model of the monument stand out, allowing us to perceive the perfection of its advanced defensive system.
