

Castle of Magalia

16th century, Renaissance style castle. Built on the remains of a previous castle, probably of the 13th century. The castle front has projecting balconies, grid windows, a round arch door and the Dávilas' coat of arms.

The castle has a thick-walled tower with small windows and ball ledge, a spacious hall with a coffered ceiling and a stone staircase. The main yard preserves a gallery with flat, ionic columns which, linked by arches, support an upper gallery with Doric columns and carved architraves.
