Church of Santiago

Romanesque facade with a Greek-Roman influence. The frieze of the Cristo de Majestad is surrounded by the Tetramorphous, guarded by the figures of the twelve apostles.

There was a fire during the War of Independence. The structure, albeit Romanesque of the late 12th century, is not static; the figures are full of life. Some of the figures are richly dressed and have expressive miens and other very accurate details. It houses the Museo de Arte Sacro.
