

Parish Church of San Pedro (Villoria)

This single-nave mudejar-romanesque church dating from the first half of the 13th century has a presbyter, a semicircular apse and a square tower. The two side aisles were added in the 16th century.

The apse end is covered by appointed oven vault. It stands on an ashlar plinth and is decorated with eight blind, pointed arches containing other smaller arches and friezes. The apse used to have two side altarpieces and a frontal one that was replaced by a stone one in 1798. This altarpiece is presided by a valuable 14th-century Christ and two sculptures of San Antón and Santa Bárbara, dating from the 17th century.
