

Church of San Sebastian

It was reconstructed almost in its entirety during the last quarter of the XVIII century by the masters builders of the region. Solid red brick and a Mudéjar technique was used for this. The floor of the Church has three naves and a presbytery, and is modified by the existence of an annexed sacristy to the presbytery.

Its Mudéjar Tower, consists of three bodies topped by a pyramidal cusp of brick and has a cross with projection on each of their faces.
