Church of San Millan

Late 18th-century Neoclassic edifice housing a superb tapestry collection. See comments. The Archbishop Don Juan Francisco Jiménez del Río had the church built in the late 18th century.

Latin cross ground plan, with a main nave divided into five stretches. The choir rests on a large arch, under which is the baptistery. Inside, neoclassic, without decorative effects. On the naves stands the cimborrio (dome), with an octagonal bases and topped off by a spire covering the transept dome.
