

Church of Santa Marina

gryphon The Romanesque church of Santa Marina is in the middle of a slope, over the houses, is made up of the usual header with a semicircular apse, a modest nave and a sturdy tower at the foot, one of the few examples of this type of bell tower in the area, where the belfry is usual

The Romanesque stonemasons left the best of their ability in the meticulous windows of the apse and the proud capitals of the triumphal arch, with representations of gryphons and the biblical scene of Daniel in the den of lions.
