

Church of San Hipolito

Built with stone blocks, it has three naves and three apses. The 17th-century tower has four sections. The second section has a balcony. The high choir, of the 15th century, has been attributed to Simón de Colonia. There are also four important bas-reliefs representing the life of San Hipólito, dating from the late 15th century, included in an altarpiece of the 17th century.

There is an important main altarpiece by Fernando de la Peña. Also of interest are two sculptures of the 12th and 15th centuries representing the Virgin and Child, a 15th-century font and choir stalls of the 16th century.
