

Palace of the Verdugo

Strong house built at the end of the 15th century with a renaissance gate and a segmental arch with the shields of the Águila and Davila families and a window in the middle with plateresque ornamentation.

It has a bull or wild boar of Celtic origin, similar to those in Guisando. There used to be a Celtic wild boar on each of the towers that frame the palace and there are as many as seventeen shields of the Aguila and other families. Don Suero del Aguila, Lord of Monsalupé y La Serrada, was the founder.
