

Monastery of Santa Maria de Palazuelos

Alfonso VIII ceded the Villa of Palazuelos to the nobleman Alonso Téllez de Meneses in 1213 who donated the land to the Cistercian Order of San Martín de Valvení. After the Desamortization (state appropriation of church lands), carried out by Mendizábal in the 19th century, what remained of the monastery was converted into a farm.

Built between the 13th and 16th centuries, cistercian architecture and only the Classic style church remains. It has two spires, a funeral chapel and tombs from the 13th and 14th centuries.
