Miranda House and House of Iñigo Angulo

Built in the mid 15th century by Francisco de Miranda, canon of Burgos. Conserves an interesting plateresque patio. Beautiful entrance gates. Houses the Museum of Burgos.

The lower floor is made of stone, and the rest in brick, all flanked by cylindrical attached towers topped by pinnacles. The façade is of Renaissance style, conceived as a triumphal semicircular arch, a couple of columns on each side, and motifs of fantastic creatures, medallions and details of plateresque tradition.
