

Church of Santa Maria

The building is made of hewn stone and brick; it was raised in the place of an earlier one. The church has a single nave and plateresque portals, as well as a baroque altarpiece inside.

The most monumental piece of this church of the XVI century is its altarpiece, of 15 meters wide and 24 high, of a late Baroque already open to neoclassical lines. The artist was Juan Manuel Becerril, which represents a very advanced Baroque, culminating his style in the main altarpiece of the parish of Frechilla, undoubtedly one of the most remarkable Spanish baroque altarpieces.
