Church of the Asuncion de Nuestra Señora

Made in brick, was built in Romanesque Mudejar style in the XII century, and underwent important reforms in the XVI and XVIII centuries. It has three small naves separated by columns and the header preserves a semicircular apse that is decorated outside with three bands of semicircular bent and blind arches. The Capilla del Marquesito, covered with ribbed vault, key pendants decorated with shields and Renaissance themes, of the 16th century, highlights.
