

Parish Church of San Pedro Manrique

17th-century church devoted to Saint Martin, with three naves divided into three sections separated by round arches and covered by small vaults, the result of several subsequent reforms. Only the chapel on the epistle side has been preserved of the original romanesque structure.

The chancel and the side aisles are Gothic and the rest is the result of a reform carried out in the 18th century. There is a Romanesque arch from a previous church and a transition Calvary.
