Castle of Vizmalo

The Vizmalo Castle is today in the interior of a farm, in a plain between the village and the Arlanzon River. A fort of which are preserved the foundations and part of the walls of the tower, made with limestone masonry thickened with mortar of lime and pebble. The existence of a hollow at the bottom, and a staircase of stone attached to the wall are justified through documents.

The remains are topped with a hipped roof. A castle of which only time has left us a great proof.
